Executive Summary

A Montreal coworking plan that is advertised as "24/7" is not the same thing as a plan that lets a visitor in at 9 p.m. on a Saturday. Across the operators whose own pages we retrieved on 2 November 2026, the pattern is consistent: single-day passes are tied to weekday business hours, while monthly desks and private offices are the products that carry round-the-clock key-card entry. Montréal CoWork lists its day pass from $30 per day plus taxes for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays (montrealcowork.com), yet its contact page says members have 24/7 access (montrealcowork.com). ECTO draws the same line: the day pass runs Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., while its dedicated desk is described as available 24/7 (ecto.coop).

Even where entry is round the clock, service is not. Hedhofis Essential members have 24/7 access (the Discovery plan is weekday-only), while non-members are limited to Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (hedhofis.com), and its reception desk is staffed only on weekdays (hedhofis.com). Swivl says most Queen Mary access runs from 6:00 a.m. to midnight (swivl.ca), so "seven-day" does not mean overnight. Among the pages we read, none documented a weekend day pass; the weekend routes are a membership, a WeWork All Access booking at select extended-hours locations, or an evening and weekend room rental such as ECTO's (ecto.coop).

On cost, the displayed after-hours entry price starts at roughly $275 to $279 per month before tax for the cheapest documented 24/7 desks in the sample: Montréal CoWork's flex desk starts at $275 plus taxes. Halte 24-7's open desk starts at $249 per month plus tax on a three-month minimum (halte24-7.com), which does not include 24/7 access; the separate $30 plus tax 24/7 add-on (halte24-7.com) brings it to $279 plus tax. Quebec adds 5% GST (revenuquebec.ca) and 9.975% QST calculated on the price excluding GST (revenuquebec.ca), a combined uplift of 14.975%. A weekday day pass cannot replace those memberships for evening or weekend work, so the buying decision reduces to a worksheet: monthly price, plus required add-ons, plus tax, divided by the number of after-hours visits actually planned. Late entry also needs a way home: the STM night bus network runs seven nights a week (stm.info), and about 1 in 20 Canadian workers had regular evening hours in April 2022 (statcan.gc.ca).

This report sets out a dated entry-rights matrix by product, a worksheet with hypothetical visit counts, a scenario chooser, and a pre-purchase checklist. The publisher of this report, 2727 Coworking, is itself a direct provider and is listed in the matrix, although its rows were not verified on the retrieval date used for the other operators. All prices are as displayed on the retrieval date and should be reconfirmed before purchase.

Introduction and Background

Search interest in "24/7 coworking" and "coworking open weekends" in Montreal tends to blur four distinct operational ideas. A buyer with nonstandard hours needs them separated, because a plan can satisfy one and fail another. This report therefore audits entry rights by specific product, not venues labelled "24/7". Every operator fact below was read on the operator's own pages on 2 November 2026 (the retrieval date), and every price is shown as displayed on that date. Where a page does not state a rule, the report says so rather than extrapolating from a different plan.

Four clocks that are often confused

- Staffed hours: the periods when a person is at reception. Hedhofis reception, for example, is open Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (hedhofis.com). Staffed hours govern deliveries, guest check-in and help with a door that will not open.
- Key-card or app entry: the hours a member's credential works. Montréal CoWork states that members have 24/7 access (montrealcowork.com) while listing reception as Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (montrealcowork.com).
- Bookable room hours: the windows in which a meeting room can be reserved and billed. Hours and rates may differ by time of day; Montréal CoWork lists a separate "outside business hours" starting rate for each room (montrealcowork.com).
- Day-pass hours: the window of a single-day product. Spaces says day pass users "typically have access during standard business hours" of Monday to Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (spacesworks.com).

Why nonstandard hours are a mainstream need

Work is not uniformly a nine-to-five phenomenon. Statistics Canada reported that about 1 in 20 Canadian workers (4.8%) had a regular evening shift or evening hours in April 2022 (statcan.gc.ca), and regular night hours accounted for 1.7% of workers in their main job (statcan.gc.ca). Those figures describe workers across all sectors, not coworking members, and no public benchmark was found for the share of Montreal coworking members who need evening or weekend entry. Separately, the share of employed Canadians mostly working from home fell to 17.4% in May 2025 (statcan.gc.ca). The reader should treat the audience as a self-assessed group: freelancers, remote workers and small teams who know their own schedule and want to know which plan matches it.

Scope, method and limits

The report covers ten operators with at least one retrieved first-party page: Montréal CoWork, ECTO, Halte 24-7, Hedhofis, Swivl, Spaces, Regus, WeWork, Crew Collective & Café and Entrepôts Dominion, plus the publisher. Coverage is not a census of Montreal. Directory listings were used only to discover names and never as evidence for hours or prices. Several pages left questions open (guest policy, heating, key deposits), and these are listed as items to confirm in writing. Prices that a page states as "from" are minimums and may not apply to every desk or term.

Neighbourhood Operators: Montréal CoWork, ECTO and Halte 24-7

These three operators sell clear tiered products with different entry windows on the same page, which makes the day-pass versus membership distinction easy to audit.

Montréal CoWork (Plateau)

Capabilities and entry rights. The coworking page lists four formulas. The day pass starts at $30 per day plus taxes and runs 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays (montrealcowork.com). The flex desk, from $275 per desk per month plus taxes, is labelled "Accès 24h/7" with unlimited access to open spaces (montrealcowork.com). The dedicated desk starts at $450 (montrealcowork.com), and private offices start at $400 per desk per month plus taxes (montrealcowork.com). Private-office members get 24/7 badge access for the whole team (montrealcowork.com).

After-hours amenities. The private-office page lists 20 soundproofed phone booths in open access (montrealcowork.com) and says meeting rooms can be reserved online around the clock (montrealcowork.com). Room rates start at $25 per hour plus taxes (montrealcowork.com).

Strengths and limitations. The entry rule is explicit per product. The page does not state a minimum term for the flex or dedicated desk, whether the phone booths remain open overnight, or what staff are present outside weekday reception hours; those are questions for the operator.

ECTO (Plateau)

Capabilities and entry rights. ECTO describes itself as a non-profit solidarity cooperative (ecto.coop). Its hot desk gives access Monday through Friday (ecto.coop), the day pass is valid Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. (ecto.coop), and the dedicated desk is the 24/7 product. The French monthly-plan page lists the hot desk at $200 per month (ecto.coop), the dedicated desk at $400 per month (ecto.coop) and a one-day pass at $30 (ecto.coop).

Terms. Posted monthly rates are based on a six-month commitment, and the same page applies a surcharge to shorter commitments (ecto.coop). Tax status of the desk prices is not stated on the retrieved pages.

Evening and weekend options without a desk. ECTO sells a separate evening and weekend meeting-room band (ecto.coop) and rents the whole space for evenings or weekends (ecto.coop), with a supervision fee of $30 per hour included (ecto.coop). This matters for a late client meeting or workshop, which is a different need from a solo worker's desk.

Halte 24-7 (Plateau)

Capabilities and entry rights. Halte's name advertises 24/7, but its own offer page separates the layers. The open-desk plan includes centre access from 9:00 to 16:00 with 24/7 access as an option (halte24-7.com), priced at $30 plus tax per month (halte24-7.com). The open desk is $249 plus tax per month on a three-month minimum, or $299 plus tax month to month (halte24-7.com). The daily price is $32.50 plus tax (halte24-7.com).

Staffing and extensions. Reception runs from 9:00 to 16:00. A separate news post says that from Tuesday to Thursday open-access spaces and meeting rooms are available until 22:00 (halte24-7.com). The post is undated, so a buyer should confirm whether that evening extension applies in the current season.

Strengths and limitations. Halte is unusual in pricing the after-hours right as a visible, separate line item, which makes the effective cost easy to compute. Whether the 24/7 add-on can be attached to a daily purchase is not stated; do not assume it.

Network and Multi-Site Operators: Hedhofis, Swivl, Spaces, Regus and WeWork

These brands run several locations, which makes the product catalogue larger and the access rules more conditional on the site.

Hedhofis

Entry rights. The homepage advertises "24/7 access in all our spaces." (hedhofis.com), but the plan pages qualify it. Discovery, at $199 per month (hedhofis.com), is limited to Monday to Friday during opening hours (hedhofis.com). Essential, at $299 per month (hedhofis.com), brings a dedicated desk reserved 24 hours a day (hedhofis.com). At Old Montreal, members are listed with 24 hours a day, 7 days a week (hedhofis.com).

Costs that sit outside the headline price. A one-time $85 file-opening fee applies (hedhofis.com), and the meeting-room page describes a one-time $85 fee for an access card (hedhofis.com). Private offices are quoted plus taxes, with cancellation notice of 60 to 90 days depending on the plan (hedhofis.com).

Support and deposits. The support team is available during regular business hours despite round-the-clock member access (hedhofis.com). The site also carries a general explanation that a coworking security deposit covers possible damage (hedhofis.com), so the deposit question should be asked per plan. Meeting rooms can be booked without a membership (hedhofis.com).

Swivl (Queen Mary and Ville Saint-Laurent)

Swivl is the clearest example of "seven-day" access that is not 24/7. The coworking page says most Queen Mary coworking access runs from 6:00 a.m. to midnight (swivl.ca) and markets "Extended seven-day access" (swivl.ca). A day pass is $25 and is suggested as a trial before a recurring plan (swivl.ca). Dedicated Desk membership lists 7-day access and 8 phone-booth hours (swivl.ca), from $379 per month on an annual plan. Advertised starting prices are before applicable taxes (swivl.ca). The homepage adds that many private-office memberships include extended or 24/7 access, with the schedule confirmed before signing (swivl.ca). The retrieved pages did not state the day-pass hours.

Spaces and Regus

Spaces lists a Montréal Cowork Day Pass from $49 per person per day (spacesworks.com) and states that day pass users generally have weekday business-hours access, while some locations may offer extended or 24-hour access depending on the site (spacesworks.com). Its Mile End listing says 24/7 access is for private office and dedicated cowork customers (spacesworks.com). A Cowork All Access Plan offers 5, 10 or unlimited days per month (spacesworks.com).

Regus lists day coworking from $49 per person per day (regus.com) and a Coworking Access Plan from $11 per person per day with unlimited days per month (regus.com). The second figure is a per-day equivalent on a 24-month contract basis (regus.com), so it is not comparable to a monthly desk without converting. The Montréal page documents no minimum rental term for coworking use (regus.com). The retrieved Regus text did not state evening or weekend entry hours for the Montréal centres.

WeWork

WeWork is the only brand in the sample whose own page documents a weekend route for a flexible plan that is not a desk membership. All Access members at select extended-hours locations can book weekend workspace (wework.com), and extended hours run from 6:00 a.m. to 11:59 p.m. at such sites (wework.com). Elsewhere, members can book Monday through Friday during each location's business hours (wework.com). Whether any Montreal building is on the extended-hours list was not established. The 1010 Sainte-Catherine Ouest building page shows a day pass starting at C$54 per day (wework.com) and All Access from C$479 per month (wework.com), with taxes extra and prices varying by location (wework.com). Guests need their own membership or Day Pass at hot desks (wework.com).

Heritage and Hybrid Sites: Crew Collective & Café and Entrepôts Dominion

Crew Collective & Café, in Old Montreal, lists a Floating Desk at $300 per month (crewcollectivecafe.com) and a Dedicated Desk at $675 per month (crewcollectivecafe.com). The Dedicated Desk membership is the product tied to 24/7 access to the members' area (crewcollectivecafe.com). The retrieved pages did not state floating-desk hours, day-pass hours or tax treatment, so the Floating Desk is marked as unconfirmed in the matrix below.

Entrepôts Dominion, in Saint-Henri, says a monthly membership gives a dedicated desk accessible 24/7 (entrepots-dominion-en.squarespace.com). Its meeting rooms, by contrast, are described for opening hours of 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday to Friday (entrepots-dominion-en.squarespace.com), and reception is an optional extra with additional fees (entrepots-dominion-en.squarespace.com). Both sites illustrate the same layered structure: the desk may be reachable at all hours while rooms and staff are not.

Feature Comparison

Table 1 below is the dated, product-level entry matrix. It lists only what each operator's page states for that product. "Not stated" means the retrieved page did not say, which is different from "not available". All prices are as displayed on 2 November 2026 and exclude tax unless the cell says otherwise.

2727 Coworking (publisher), day pass	Not verified on the 2 November 2026 retrieval date	Not verified on the 2 November 2026 retrieval date; confirm with the publisher	Hours, price and after-hours rights to be confirmed with the operator

Operator and product	Documented entry window	Displayed price (tax status)	Staffed hours / notes
2727 Coworking (publisher), monthly desks	Not verified on the 2 November 2026 retrieval date	Not verified on the 2 November 2026 retrieval date; confirm with the publisher	Hours, taxes, cancellation and room inclusion to be confirmed

The interpretive reading of Table 1 is straightforward. Every day-pass row that states hours is weekday-only, and every row that states a 24/7 right is a monthly desk or office. The two partial exceptions are WeWork, whose All Access plan is a membership with extended hours at select sites, and Swivl, whose seven-day access ends at midnight. The matrix also shows how often key facts are simply unstated: tax status appears on only a few pages, and reception hours appear on fewer. The publisher's own rows were not verified on the retrieval date used for the other operators, so they carry no price or hours figures and should be confirmed with the operator before purchase.

Performance and Benchmarks: Effective After-Hours Cost

No independent benchmark of coworking after-hours cost exists for Montreal, so this report supplies a method rather than a market average. The worksheet is: effective after-hours cost per visit = (plan price + required access add-ons + booking or card fees, plus tax) divided by the number of after-hours visits the buyer actually expects. The inputs are the buyer's own, and the report does not assume any usage pattern.

Tax treatment used in the worksheet

Quebec applies the federal GST at 5% on the selling price and QST at 9.975% on the price excluding GST (revenuquebec.ca). The Canada Revenue Agency states that the rate depends on the province or territory (canada.ca) and that where a provincial tax applies, GST is calculated on the price without it (canada.ca). Because both taxes are computed on the pre-tax price, the combined uplift on a pre-tax amount is 5% plus 9.975%, or 14.975%. Quebec's revenue agency administers the GST in Québec under federal rules (revenuquebec.ca). A $100 price becomes $114.98 (author calculation from the GST rate (revenuquebec.ca) and the QST rate (revenuquebec.ca)). Where a page states "plus taxes", the table below applies this uplift; where tax status is not stated, the uplift is applied as an upper bound and flagged.

Worksheet with hypothetical visit counts

Table 2 below applies the formula to the 24/7 or extended-access monthly desks with a clearly displayed price. The visit counts of 4, 10 and 20 per month are illustrative, not market data (Hypothetical Example).

Plan (displayed price)	Monthly price plus required add-on, pre-tax	With 14.975% tax	Per after-hours visit at 4 / 10 / 20 visits
Montréal CoWork flex desk (from $275, plus taxes)	$275	$316.18	$79.05 / $31.62 / $15.81
Halte 24-7 open desk, 3-month term ($249 plus $30 add-on, plus tax)	$279	$320.78	$80.20 / $32.08 / $16.04

Plan (displayed price)	Monthly price plus required add-on, pre-tax	With 14.975% tax	Per after-hours visit at 4 / 10 / 20 visits
Halte 24-7 open desk, month to month ($299 plus $30 add-on, plus tax)	$329	$378.27	$94.57 / $37.83 / $18.91
Hedhofis Essential ($299, tax not stated)	$299	$343.78 (upper bound)	$85.94 / $34.38 / $17.19
Swivl dedicated desk, annual plan (from $379, before taxes)	$379	$435.76	$108.94 / $43.58 / $21.79
ECTO dedicated desk ($400, tax not stated)	$400	$459.90 (upper bound)	$114.98 / $45.99 / $23.00
Montréal CoWork dedicated desk (from $450, plus taxes)	$450	$517.39	$129.35 / $51.74 / $25.87

The ordering in Table 2 is driven almost entirely by the monthly base price, because the divisor is the same for all plans. Two caveats limit it. First, the cheapest rows are open or flex desks with no assigned seat, no storage and, in some cases, limited phone-booth rights, so a lower effective cost is not a like-for-like saving. Second, one-time fees (Hedhofis's $85 charge, for instance) are excluded from the monthly columns; spread over a first-year budget they add roughly $7 per month. A buyer should add each such fee to the first month in their own spreadsheet. Swivl's $379 is an annual-plan rate, and ECTO's posted rates assume a six-month commitment, so month-to-month comparisons require asking for the shorter-term price.

Membership versus day passes

Day passes cannot be compared directly with after-hours memberships, because the passes that state hours are weekday-only. They can still be compared on weekday volume. Montréal CoWork's pass is $30 plus tax and its flex desk is $275 plus tax, so the break-even is about 9.2 weekday visits per month; Halte's $32.50 daily price against its $279 desk-plus-add-on is about 8.6 visits. Those break-evens apply only to weekday use. A buyer who needs one Saturday visit a month should instead compare against the cost of a meeting room rental (for example ECTO's evening and weekend band) or a short-term month-to-month desk, not a weekday day pass.

Data Analysis and Evidence

This section collects the quantitative context a buyer needs outside the operator pages: tax arithmetic, evening and weekend transit costs, public after-hours alternatives, and the labour-market backdrop.

Transit cost and coverage after hours

Late entry rights are only useful if the trip home is possible. The Société de transport de Montréal (STM) night bus network runs seven nights a week, covering most of the Island of Montréal (stm.info), with night buses every 4 to 45 minutes depending on the area (stm.info). Night lines carry numbers in the 300s (stm.info). A "Between Stops" service lets a customer travelling alone or with children get off between two stops on a route (stm.info); the page gives its hours as 7:30 p.m. to 5:30 a.m.

Table 3 below lists the fare products relevant to evening and weekend visits.

Product	Documented window	Fare
Unlimited Evening	Unlimited trips after 6 p.m., all fare zones (stm.info)	$6.75 (artm.quebec)
Unlimited Weekend	From 4 p.m. on Friday, all fare zones (stm.info)	$17.00 (artm.quebec)

The regional transport authority (ARTM) states that these passes work regardless of whether the customer uses bus, metro, train or the REM light rail (artm.quebec), and the evening pass requires first use before midnight (artm.quebec). Interpreted for a coworking buyer, $6.75 per evening is a small marginal cost beside the desk price, but the pass is irrelevant for anyone who walks, cycles or drives. Metro first and last train times were not retrieved for this report and should be checked for the specific station.

Public after-hours alternatives

For occasional weekend work, a public library is the lowest-cost reference point, with the limitation that it is a library rather than a workspace with phone booths. The Grande Bibliothèque, at 475 boulevard De Maisonneuve Est (banq.qc.ca), is listed with hours of 09:00 to 21:00 on weekdays from Tuesday (banq.qc.ca) and 09:00 to 17:00 on Sunday (banq.qc.ca); the same page lists Monday as closed and Saturday as 09:00 to 17:00. These hours are posted by BAnQ (Bibliothèque et Archives nationales du Québec) and should be rechecked, as they change by season.

Working alone after hours

A person is "alone" at work when they cannot be seen or heard by another person (ccohs.ca), according to the Canadian Centre for Occupational Health and Safety (CCOHS). It adds that working alone is not always hazardous but can be when other circumstances are present (ccohs.ca). That guidance is directed at employers, and the same logic helps a freelancer: schedule higher-risk tasks for normal business hours (ccohs.ca), keep regular contact (ccohs.ca) and make sure any check-in plan covers hours outside core business hours (ccohs.ca). Employees of a regulated employer should follow that employer's lone-work policy; this report is not occupational health advice.

Labour-market and industry backdrop

Statistics Canada reported that the proportion of employed Canadians mostly working from home fell for the fourth year in a row, to 17.4% in May 2025 from 18.7% in May 2024 (statcan.gc.ca), and that the commuter share rose for the fourth year running (statcan.gc.ca). Montréal's share of commuters using a car, truck or van, 70.0%, was among the lowest of the 15 largest metropolitan areas, alongside Toronto and Vancouver (statcan.gc.ca), which suggests that transit availability matters for Montreal buyers. Allwork.Space, a trade publication, reports freelancers and self-employed workers as roughly 40 to 42% of coworking users, attributing the figure to Deskmag (allwork.space). That is a secondary summary and should be read as indicative only.

Decision Guide: Scenarios and Pre-Purchase Questions

Scenario chooser

- Solo worker, three or four Saturdays a month: a weekday day pass does not fit, since passes that state hours are weekday-only. Compare a month-to-month desk with 24/7 rights against a short room rental. Halte's month-to-month open desk with the 24/7 add-on is $329 plus tax per month, or about $94.57 per visit at four visits after tax (calculated from the figures cited above).
- Solo worker, weekday evenings until 10 p.m.: the question is whether midnight is enough. Most Swivl access runs to midnight, and Halte reports a Tuesday to Thursday extension to 22:00 (confirm the current dates with Halte), so either can cover a 10 p.m. finish on those days without full 24/7 entry. For the trip home, an evening transit pass requires first use before midnight (artm.quebec) and applies to unlimited trips after 6 p.m. (stm.info).
- Hybrid team of three, two late sessions a month: a private office with 24/7 badge entry for the whole team is the documented route at Montréal CoWork. Where team members share one meeting need, an evening room rental such as ECTO's may cost less than a monthly office.
- Late client call: entry is a lesser issue than room and phone-booth rules. Montréal CoWork's outside-business-hours room rates and Hedhofis's membership-free room booking are the relevant documented facts. Confirm in writing that the room will be unlocked and heated at the hour of the call.
- Overnight work after midnight: only plans with explicit 24/7 or round-the-clock wording qualify, and the buyer should schedule higher-risk tasks for normal business hours (ccohs.ca) and plan transport with the STM night bus network (stm.info) or another return trip. Night buses run every 4 to 45 minutes depending on the area (stm.info), and night lines are numbered in the 300s (stm.info). The STM's "Between Stops" service allows customers travelling alone to get off between two stops (stm.info). Because the person may be alone in the space, plan check-ins for hours outside core business hours (ccohs.ca).
- Weekend-only project, no recurring need: consider WeWork All Access at a site with extended hours (whether any Montreal building offers them was not established, so check in the WeWork app first), a trial day, or the public library for lighter tasks; the Unlimited Weekend transit pass is valid from 4 p.m. on Friday (stm.info), and the Grande Bibliothèque lists Sunday hours of 09:00 to 17:00 (banq.qc.ca).

Security, heating, phone-booth and guest questions

None of the retrieved operator pages stated a heating or ventilation schedule, so that question must be asked directly. CCOHS defines working alone as being unable to be seen or heard by another person (ccohs.ca) and notes that working alone is not always hazardous (ccohs.ca). The following list is a checklist, not a finding about any operator.

- Entry credential: is it a key card, app or physical key, and is a deposit or fee required? Hedhofis lists an $85 access-card fee; WeWork requires government-issued identification to verify identity for a keycard (wework.com).
- Staff and emergency contact: who answers at 9 p.m., and is there an out-of-hours number? Support is business-hours only at some sites.

- Heating and ventilation: do they run in normal mode overnight and on weekends, or in a setback mode?
- Phone booths and rooms: are booths open after hours, and can rooms be booked online at that hour? Montréal CoWork documents 24-hour online room booking for private offices.
- Guests: can a member admit a guest after reception closes? WeWork says hot-desk guests need their own membership or Day Pass.
- Tax and term: is the price before or after tax (Quebec QST is 9.975% on the price excluding GST (revenuquebec.ca)), and is there a minimum? GST is calculated on the price without the provincial tax (canada.ca), and the federal rate is 5% (revenuquebec.ca). ECTO's rates assume six months, and Regus's access plan pricing assumes 24 months.
- Lone-work practice: keep regular contact (ccohs.ca) and agree a check-in routine, as CCOHS suggests for hours outside core business hours (ccohs.ca).

French Search Terms and Operator-Contact Checklist

Operators often publish rules only in French. The terms below match the wording found on the retrieved pages and are useful when searching an operator's site.

- accès 24/7, accès 24h/7: the labels used by Montréal CoWork and Halte 24-7.
- en semaine, du lundi au vendredi, de 9h à 17h: weekday-only day-pass wording.
- soir et fin de semaine: evening and weekend, the wording ECTO uses for room rental.
- avant taxes, + tx, + taxes: how operators mark tax-exclusive prices.
- engagement, mois-le-mois, sans engagement: commitment and month-to-month.
- passe journée, pass 1 jour: day pass.
- poste flexible, poste dédié, bureau privé: flex desk, dedicated desk and private office.

A short contact checklist for an email or call, to be recorded with a date:

- State the exact product by name and the exact hours needed, including holiday dates.
- Ask whether the right is in the written terms or only on the web page.
- Ask for any deposit, card fee or setup fee, and whether tax is included.
- Ask which services (reception, heating, booths, rooms, cleaning) run at those hours.
- Ask who may be admitted as a guest at those hours.
- Save the reply, because hours and rules change.

Implications and Future Directions

The most useful change a buyer can make is to stop treating "24/7" as a venue attribute and treat it as a product attribute. In the sample, the same address often sells at least three different entry windows. For operators, the implication is that clearer per-product wording would reduce wasted tours and mismatched purchases; Halte's separate add-on line and Montréal CoWork's per-card hours are examples of that clarity. For buyers, the implication is to request the entry right in writing for the exact plan.

Several developments could change the matrix. WeWork's model of extended hours at selected locations suggests that multi-site brands may differentiate sites by hours rather than by plan, so the answer to "can a member come on Sunday" may depend on the building. Seasonal changes, such as Halte's evening extension, suggest that hours can be time-bound. Montréal's low car-commute share (statcan.gc.ca) also supports the transit focus. The Statistics Canada figures, together with its commuter data (statcan.gc.ca), show a modest decline in the work-from-home share from 2024 to 2025 (statcan.gc.ca). Statistics Canada also puts regular night hours at 1.7% of workers (statcan.gc.ca) and evening hours at 4.8% (statcan.gc.ca), but no source retrieved here forecasts demand for evening or weekend coworking in Montreal, and none should be inferred.

The publisher, 2727 Coworking, offers desks, private offices, meeting and conference rooms, virtual offices and business addresses in Montreal, which makes it a participant in this market and not a neutral observer. The matrix therefore lists the publisher's day pass and monthly desks without verified price or hours figures, and the report does not cite the publisher's own pages as evidence. The readers who most need an auditable matrix are those with nonstandard hours, and they are best served by confirming every row directly with the operator before paying.

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

Is there a Montreal coworking space with 24/7 access?

Yes, but usually only on monthly plans. Montréal CoWork's flex desk, ECTO's dedicated desk, Hedhofis's Essential plan, Halte 24-7 with its add-on and Crew Collective's Dedicated Desk all state round-the-clock or 24/7 access in the pages reviewed. Day passes in the same pages state weekday business hours.

Which coworking spaces in Montreal are open on weekends?

Weekend rights are plan-specific. Swivl markets seven-day access with most use from 6:00 a.m. to midnight, Hedhofis Essential members have 24/7 access (the Discovery plan is weekday-only), and WeWork All Access can be booked on weekends at select extended-hours sites, though whether any Montreal building is on that list was not established. ECTO rents rooms and the whole space for evenings and weekends. The pages reviewed did not document a weekend day pass. The Unlimited Weekend transit pass covers bus, metro, train and REM (artm.quebec) and is valid from 4 p.m. on Friday (stm.info).

Is there a 24-hour coworking space in Montreal available for a single day?

The pages reviewed do not document a 24-hour day pass. Day-pass rows that state hours are weekday-only, and a 24/7 day pass should not be assumed from a membership's rights. Ask the operator in writing.

What does a Montreal coworking day pass cost on a weekend?

No operator page retrieved prices a weekend day pass. Displayed day-pass prices run from $25 at Swivl (whose day-pass hours are not stated) to C$54 at WeWork, with Montréal CoWork at $30 plus taxes, Halte at $32.50 plus tax, and Spaces and Regus at $49.

How much is 24/7 coworking access in Montreal?

Among displayed prices, monthly 24/7 desks start near $275 to $279 before tax and rise to $450 or more for dedicated desks, with Quebec's 14.975% combined GST and QST uplift applied where tax is extra: GST is 5% (revenuquebec.ca), and GST is calculated on the price without the provincial tax (canada.ca).

Is a membership better than day passes?

For weekday use only, the break-even is roughly 8 to 10 visits per month at the operators compared. For evening or weekend use, only memberships (or room rentals) document the necessary entry.

What are the cheapest weekend coworking options?

The lowest displayed pricing for a monthly 24/7 route is Montréal CoWork's flex desk at $275 plus taxes, followed by Halte 24-7's three-month open desk with the 24/7 add-on at $279 plus tax ($249 plus the $30 add-on); Halte's three-month minimum makes it less suited to occasional use. For lighter work, the Grande Bibliothèque lists Sunday hours of 09:00 to 17:00 (banq.qc.ca) without a fee on the page.

Which French search terms are useful?

Try "espace coworking ouvert fin de semaine Montréal", "coworking Montréal accès 24h/7" and "passe journée coworking Montréal", then check the operator's own page for the plan wording.

Conclusion

The question behind "Montreal coworking 24/7 access" is not which venue is open at midnight but which product grants entry rights at the hour needed. In the pages reviewed on 2 November 2026, weekday-only wording is attached to day passes, round-the-clock wording to monthly desks and offices, and staffing, room booking and support follow separate, usually weekday, schedules. Swivl's midnight boundary and Halte's separate 24/7 add-on show that even "seven-day" and "24/7" labels carry conditions.

A buyer should compute the worksheet with their own visit count, add every fee and the 14.975% Quebec tax uplift where tax is extra, and ask each operator to confirm the exact product's entry, staffing, room, heating, booth and guest terms in writing. Where a need is occasional, evening and weekend room rentals, a month-to-month desk or a public library may beat a long commitment. Every figure in this report reflects what operators displayed on the retrieval date and must be reconfirmed before purchase.
